SUN MOVES SLOWLY.

One of the long established industries of Georgia is under attack and its beneficiaries are throwing their political and moral forces into a pool for concerted resistance. Humane societies backed by the support of civilized opinion and impulses have begun a vigorous campaign for the abolition of the "whipping bosses" or "flogging masters" who have been fixtures in Georgia prisons.

Naturally the disciplinarians who have drawn salaries for enforcing order and obedience or compelling labor in municipal stockades and county, are not going to give up their jobs without a fight, whatever public opinion may be. The start was made when the humane society of Atlanta forced the abandonment of flogging women inmates of the city stockade. Then followed an order forbidding whipping men prisoners, which encouraged the opponents of flogging so much that they set out to have the practice wiped out all over the state. Success followed in different counties, but only by virtue of concessions to public opinion, as the propagandists learned when the campaign spread over the state and the "flogging masters" began to make a fight to save their jobs.

Then it was found that the Georgia penal code established the positions of "whipping bosses" but left their appointment to the discretion of prison wardens, and the opponents of flogging are overjoyed to be informed by the warden of the prison at Brunswick that there has not been a flogging in that institution for ten years. The humane societies and women's organizations have interpreted this as evidence that flogging can be dispensed with everywhere, a view they are at present trying to impress upon the legislature to bring a repeal. But the "flogging masters" are putting up a stubborn fight to retain one of the recognized institutions of the state.

ANOTHER FEDERAL FIZZLE.

All the teams of white paper which were given by newspapers, had pressed for paper to federal vocational education have been wasted because the board had made a disastrous failure of its rehabilitation of wounded service men, according to charges filed with the house education committee by Harold A. Littlefield, reporter, who has made an investigation for the New York Evening Post.

In a statement, Littlefield claimed that out of a total of 209,000 men registered with the board, of whom it is believed 110,000 are eligible for training, only 24,000 have been placed in training schools after 19 months of work by the board. Only 217 have been trained and placed in employment, he charged.

Other charges of Littlefield were:

More than 13,000 service men whose appeals for training have been approved have never been sent to schools.

The soldiers become so tired of waiting that 30 per cent of those eligible have "thrown up in disgust" their chances of getting to school.

Ten per cent of those who have started the training have abandoned it because of many delays.

Lux business methods by the board.

Cruelty toward the wounded service men by representatives of the board, as evidenced by an alleged order claiming them to be "hard boiled" with their patients.

READY-TO-WEAR HOUSES.

A phase of the housing situation which is giving South Bend as much concern as it is the cities of the Calumet region is commented upon by the South Bend Tribune, which says:

"The agitation in Chicago of the ready-cut house as partial solution of the shelter problem is a good thing. If Chicagoans go to the bottom of the subject they will instruct the nation's people. The factory-made house being adopted there it will be taken up rapidly in other cities suffering from a lack of dwellings.

"We suggest that the public notice the state of the lumber market in connection with the ready-cut house discussion. It has been said to be soft for a number of weeks and buyers are urged to come in now. Likewise the brick manufacturers are suggesting that stabilized prices are quite likely. Nothing can be said of the likelihood of uninterrupted work by the building trades, without which no housing scheme can succeed at present.

"This must be said of the so-called portable house: It is a house that can be bought and set up and will provide shelter for a man's family. This shelter cannot now be obtained in any city we know anything about at anything like reasonable rent. Families are doubled and tripled in one-family houses to the point of indecency and the restriction against children is encouraging prevention of family increase.

"Nobody seems to care particularly whether the house shortage is ended or not except the newspapers and a few manufacturers. Yet the shelter situation is one of the greatest, if not the greatest, single cause of extreme and dangerous socialism in the country. It will be better to encourage the use of ready-cut houses than to have no houses.

SMOOT SERVES ULTIMATUM TO SAVE PAPER.

In the interest of conserving the supply of paper, as well as the cost of printing and mailing, Senator Smoot has given formal notice that hereafter he will object to all extraneous matter going into the Congressional Record except resolutions from state legislatures or city councils. Mr. Smoot's ultimatum means that petitions, political speeches, newspaper editorials, etc., will not be given free publicity through the files of the Record. During the debate on the peace treaty the columns of that publication were loaded down with a mass of material that had no proper place in the official proceedings. So notorious did the practice become that one democrat from the South earned the title of "exchange editor of the Congressional Record."

IF PERSHING'S coat is "split up the back," as a Texas congressman charges, it is too bad. Hasn't he another one?

NO CHARGE TO EXCHANGE LIBERTY BONDS

Each man makes no charge for the exchange of temporary into permanent Liberty bonds. The temporary ones may be surrendered through banks and trust companies and forwarded by them to the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago. The new bonds will be delivered at the expense of the United States. This official announcement was made by the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago that the Liberty bond holders might know that they do not have to pay anything to the banks for exchanging the bonds for them. The exchange of bonds started March 15.

In the Seventh Federal Reserve district there are outstanding $22,000,000 of the third loan bonds, dated May 9, 1918, and maturing September 15, 1928. To this issue there were close to 2,450,000 individual subscribers. On and after April 1 the Reserve bank expects to have sufficient supply of the permanent bonds of the first and second 4's and first and second 4 1/2's to go around. Of these four classes there are outstanding in this district about $15,000,000 worth.

The first 4's represent conversions of the first 3 1/2 per cent Liberty loan bonds to the 4 per cent bonds of the second Liberty loan. There is every advantage in converting these to the 4 1/2 per cent bonds of the third Liberty loan, as they retain their original maturity dates. The first 4's have been without an interest coupon since last December; the second 4's since November. This interest will be fully adjusted on the exchange into permanent bonds.

THURSDAY LAST DAY

Thursday, March 25, will be the last day in which the owners of property in West Hammond can pay their special assessments without having the delinquent penalty attached. Clerk Andrew Stachowicz has had one of his busiest tax collection seasons this year and says that it now looks as though there would be few delinquents. He has been keeping his office open certain nights of each week in order to take care of the rush. When the books close this spring, the number of special assessments will have been greatly reduced as on many of them this was the last payment, a fact very gratifying to the people who have been making payments for years and also to the tax collector who has been hampered by a multiplicity of special accounts.
